

Environment Masters Research Exhibition

2 September 2010

The School of Applied Sciences at Cranfield University is hosting an end-of-year exhibition to showcase the research of over 200 Masters students across the 20 environmental masters courses we offer.

Industry, government agencies, charitable organisations and colleagues from across the University are invited to attend and participate in an afternoon of topical exhibitions and discussion.

The event will showcase Environment Masters research, funded and supported by a wide spectrum of organisations including UK water utilities, major engineering and environmental consultancies.

Research will be presented across a wide range of topics including ecology, economics, environmental pollution, geographical information, land and soil management, sustainability and sustainable practices, water management, water and wastewater treatment and waste and resources management.

To view a list of the environmental Masters' courses showcased at this event, please visit www.cranfield.ac.uk/sas/environment

Where and who to contact?

The event is being held in the Vincent Building, Cranfield University from 1pm - 3pm on Thursday 2 September 2010.

Please register your attendance at www.cranfield.ac.uk/sas/register-emre

For further information, please contact:

Rebecca Roy

E: rebecca.roy@cranfield.ac.uk

T: +44 (0)1234 750111 ext 4036

